O ur engineering makes the difference

Haven't you ever wished someone would build a good-looking door that didn't droop, stick, and allow cold air to seep into your house? Well, someone has. At REHAU, we've created the perfect combination—vinyl (PVC) doors that are elegant and tough because, along with good looks, we build in innovative structural reinforcements.

- A wide selection of styles is available, from classic to traditional to contemporary.
- A versatile tilt feature on certain styles allows ventilation and can further protect your home from vandalism.
- Most styles are available with screens.

Standard multi-point locking system thwarts forced entry.

PVC blocks are inserted into steel reinforcement, forming the industry's most solid swinging door corner.

Hardware, available in complementary colors, is solidly attached to steel-reinforced door sashes for increased durability and safety.

Doors are available in a variety of styles, sizes and configurations.
